

REGISTRATION MEMORANDUM

To: College of Law Students
FROM: José Gabilondo, Associate Dean for Academic Affairs
THROUGH: College of Law Faculty
RE: Summer 2026 Course Registration
DATE: March 11, 2026

To prepare you for the summer semester, this memorandum includes the summer class schedule (Appendix A), the summer examination schedule (Appendix B), instructions on enrolling in courses, selected academic policies, advising resources, and guidelines on how often courses are offered.

REGISTRATION

As explained in Part III and Box 1 infra, appointments for registration become viewable on March 25th, with initial registration by appointment starting on April 6th and closing on April 10th.

PETITIONS

If your petition relates to overloads or underloads, you must submit it through the student portal at my.fiu.edu by Tuesday March 31st. Petitions regarding these issues submitted after this date will not be considered.

I. DEAN'S MESSAGE

Dear Student Members of the College of Law,

Congratulations on another successful year! Please let me express my excitement about your academic possibilities for the summer and the coming year. Picking the right courses is an important part of making the most of your program of legal education. To that end, please review our summer offerings, reach out to your assigned faculty advisor, and take full advantage of the resources of the law school. We look forward to supporting you in your journey of personal and professional development.

Dean Michelle Mason

II. COMPLIANCE

In addition to complying with Florida law and federal law, the law school is subject to several laws and norms.

American Bar Association

The law school is accredited by the American Bar Association (ABA), which establishes standards with which law schools must comply. See ABA Standards. Every year, the law school submits comprehensive information to demonstrate our ongoing compliance with these standards. The ABA uses this information to prepare the Standard 509 disclosure of consumer information, which you can find here.

If you are aware of a problem or situation that may implicate the law school's compliance with an ABA Standards, please send an email to Daisel Nunez titled "ABA Standards Complaint." Your email should identify and describe the problem or situation that you believe implicates the Standard. You will receive confirmation that your email has been received. If you are not satisfied with the eventual resolution, you may write directly to the Associate Dean for Academic Affairs.

Association of American Law Schools

The law school belongs to the Association of American Law Schools, which establishes the following core values, which its member schools must promote.

Zero-tolerance policy on sexual harassment and sexual misconduct

The law school has a zero-tolerance policy against all forms of sexual harassment, sexual misconduct, and discrimination based on sex (or other prohibited basis). This policy applies to students, faculty, and staff. As set forth in Regulation FIU-105, the policy extends not only to sexual misconduct and sexual harassment, but also to gender-based harassment, domestic violence, dating violence, and stalking. To report a possible violation, please follow the instructions provided by the department of Human Resources here.

College of Law JD Handbook

You may wish to download a complete version of our J.D. Handbook from the website for the Registrar's office.

III. SUMMER REGISTRATION MECHANICS

Please read the following discussion carefully to learn about our staggered approach to self-registration.

A. Dates

Initial course registration for Summer 2026 will begin by appointment times on Monday, April 6th, and will end at 11:59 pm on Friday, April 10th. Registration will reopen on Monday, May 11th, and will end at 11:59 pm on Friday, May 22nd, which coincides with the end of the first week of classes.

B. Self-registration through Panthersoft

Summer enrollment is limited to a maximum of 6 credit hours, unless an approved overload exception applies.

Via Panthersoft, you will be able to register in most courses, with the exception of clinics, externships, and courses that require special approval, discussed infra in Part XII Clinics and Externships. Log into PantherSoft via the portal at <https://my.fiu.edu/> Home Page —> Manage Classes —> Follow all the required steps.

For summer, all students, including those on academic supervision, must self-register.

A. Automatic registration

For the summer term, there is no automatic registration.

B. Registration priority

Veterans receive priority registration. Please email the Registrar.

There are three enrollment appointments assigned based on completed credits.

1. 73-90 Credits
2. 44-72 Credits
3. 21-43 Credits

C. Enrollment caps and waitlists

As a general rule, enrollment is limited by the seating capacity of the assigned classroom. Some courses may have lower caps based on their format or instructional needs. For example, seminars are typically limited to 15 students. When demand exceeds available seats, the Registrar will manage a waitlist and fill seats in order. To be added to a waitlist during registration, please email lawregistrar@fiu.edu.

D. Independent study

Students interested in pursuing Independent Study credit shall communicate with the Registrar regarding specific requirements, which include: (i) securing a faculty advisor, (ii) preparing a proposal, and (iii) obtaining authorization from the Associate Dean of Academic Affairs.

Important deadlines

Please pay attention to the following important dates that impact registration and remaining in good standing:

There are no ranks in Summer

E. Petitions

If your petition relates to overloads or underloads, you must submit it through the student portal at my.fiu.edu by Tuesday March 31st. Petitions regarding these issues submitted after this date will not be considered. You will be notified of the resolution by Friday April 3rd. If your petition is simply to add or drop a course be, you have until the end of the first week of class to file it.

IV. YOUR FRIEND THE DEGREE AUDIT

All students are required to take all foundation courses and sufficient upper-level course credits to reach the 90-credit graduation requirement. This includes 59 credit hours of upper-level courses after completion of the Foundation Curriculum. Please familiarize yourself with the Panthersoft degree audit, the single most important tool for tracking your progress in meeting degree requirements.

A. Panthersoft degree audit

To track your degree progress, you regularly use the degree audit, a powerful tool that puts you in the driver's seat in terms of understanding and monitoring your ongoing progress in meeting degree requirements. Please see the sample degree audit in Appendix F. Though not apparent from the printed version, when you are in the audit, you can identify which courses you can take to meet graduation requirements

To access your degree audit, go to my.fiu.edu, select the academic advising tile, then click on panther degree audit. If you have any questions about your degree audit after review, please contact the Law Registrar.

*The Registrar's office can help you track your completion of these requirements, but you are solely responsible for meeting them and for monitoring your progress by periodically performing your own degree audits.

B. Meeting credit requirements

Full-time program

Students in the full-time program should be aware that if they take only the minimum number of credits required for each semester (12 credits) and do not take summer classes, they will have earned only 72 credits at the end of three years, which is not enough to earn the law degree.

Part-time program

Students in the part-time program should be aware that they will have to take courses during at least one summer semester if they want to graduate in the spring of their fourth year. In general, the part-time program lasts 4 academic years. If a student takes courses only during the fall and spring terms, they have 8 semesters to meet their graduation requirements. However, part-time students are capped at taking 11 credits a semester, which means that attending only during the fall and spring will leave them with a maximum of 88 credits, i.e., 2 credits short of the 90-credit requirement to graduate. Therefore, students who want to graduate in the spring of their fourth year must take some summer classes.

Failed courses

Please note that failing a class may keep you from satisfying graduation requirements within the regular time period, i.e., three years for full-time students and four years for part-time students.

C. Course underloads and overloads

Minimum course load: A student must be enrolled in a minimum of 12 credit hours in a semester to be considered a full-time student. A student must be enrolled in a minimum of six credit hours in the fall/spring semester or a minimum of five credits during the summer session to be considered a part-time student.

Maximum course load. A full-time student may not enroll in more than 16 credit hours of courses, and a part-time student may not enroll in more than 11 credit hours of courses in one semester.

Limitations on overloads. If you wish to deviate from these minimums or maximums, you must submit a petition. To submit your petition, go to my.fiu.edu>student tools>e forms. In general, you may take an overload only once during your program of legal education.

D. Upper-Level and Graduation Requirements

The College of Law imposes several other requirements summarized below in Box 2. You are allowed to graduate only if you have satisfied each of these requirements, many of which have additional sub-requirements as to timing or grading. For example, you must get at least a C in Professional Responsibility to satisfy the upper-level requirement. The degree audit described below lets you identify which courses can be taken to satisfy these requirements. Please pay special attention to our recommendations about when to meet your LSV III and seminar requirements.

Box 2: Overview of Upper-Level Distributional and Other Requirements for Graduation

Death Penalty Clinic	45 credits (pre), Professional Responsibility (pre or co), Death Penalty (pre)

In certain situations, the Associate Dean for Academic Affairs may waive these requirements.

E. Other limits

You are also subject to other policies about course selection, laid out in our academic rules. For example, you can take a maximum of 12 credits pass/fail. Of these 12, no more than 6 may be earned outside of the classroom. You are also subject to a limit on the number of courses that you can take pass/fail, such as the Special Topic courses listed below.

V. SEMINARS AND NEW COURSE OFFERINGS

We are happy to introduce the following seminars and new offerings. To make informed decisions about timing your course selection, please consult Appendix D, which outlines how often upper-level courses are typically offered.

New offerings

LAW 6297 NAFTA AND OTHER REGIONAL TRADE AGREEMENTS (3)
(Guerra)

This course analyzes the legal structures of non-global freer trade agreements, including but not limited to NAFTA. It reviews GATT Article XXIV and the economic and policy debate (global vs. regional trade arrangements); discusses key aspects of NAFTA, including industrial development, investment dispute and other disputes; and analyzes legal and policy issues relating to the negotiation of a Free Trade Agreement of the Americas (FTAA). Other regional trade arrangements, including the Southern Cone Common Market (Mercosur), are also considered. A focus of the course is efforts in NAFTA to deal with environmental and labor concerns.

SPECIAL TOPIC: SPACE LAW AND POLICY (2)
(Dagley)
(Pass/Fail)

This course provides a foundational understanding of the legal frameworks governing outer space, including the Moon and other celestial bodies. The coursework will encompass discussion on the fundamental legal principles and structure applicable to the use and exploration of outer space, including the role of government agencies and intergovernmental organizations. In addition, the coursework will cover topics ranging from the structure of the International Space Station (and what lies beyond the ISS), commercial space activities, space resources, private human spaceflight, the military use of space, and environmental issues. Finally, students will have the opportunity to participate in an interactive simulation presenting a hypothetical scenario of a dispute in outer space that engages a multidisciplinary aspect.

SPECIAL TOPIC: ACCESS TO JUSTICE (2)
(Dollar)
(Pass/Fail)

This course examines how the civil legal system serves—or fails to serve—the legal needs of everyday people. The course is divided into three parts. First, we will examine the regulation of the legal profession, tracing its historical development and recent reforms in states such as Arizona, Utah, and Alaska. Second, we will analyze key components of the civil justice system, including courts, legal service providers, and self-represented litigants. Third, we will focus on practice areas where access to legal assistance is particularly constrained: family law, immigration, housing, and medical benefits. Throughout the course, we will consider potential solutions and opportunities for systemic reform.

Seminars

The summer schedule includes three seminars. For seminars offered in the hybrid or asynchronous modality, see infra Part VII Distance Education to appreciate the implications of taking distance education courses.

SUMMER 2026
Topic	Instructor	Time
Poverty Law	Mason	Monday 5:00 p.m. – 6:30 p.m.
Law and Order: Advanced Criminal Law	Schulze	asynchronous
Special Topics in IP	Suarez	Monday 5:00 p.m. – 7:05 p.m.

ADVANCED TOPICS IN INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY (Suarez)

This advanced seminar presumes knowledge of intellectual property (IP) law fundamentals and will explore current issues, decisions, and developments in IP law, practice and policy. Although the specific topics discussed may change, the seminar will cover topics related to patent, trade secret, trademark, and copyright, including prosecution and litigation considerations—especially in light of recent developments surrounding Artificial Intelligence. Time permitting, the seminar may also touch upon topics related to name, image, and likeness (NIL) rights and considerations of international IP law and rights. Students will write papers on some specific aspect of IP law, not limited to those topics covered in class.

LAW AND ORDER: ADVANCED CRIMINAL LAW (Schulze)

This seminar uses the narrative framework of the long-running series Law & Order to explore the profound friction between black-letter law and the pursuit of justice. Each week, students will analyze a specific episode alongside foundational jurisprudential texts—ranging from Bentham’s utilitarianism to modern critiques of prosecutorial discretion—to evaluate whether the legal outcomes depicted are not only doctrinally sound but ethically and philosophically justifiable.

POVERTY LAW (Mason)

This course serves as a comprehensive exploration into the intersection of law, policy, and poverty. It delves into the multifaceted nature of poverty, providing both a historical and contemporary context. Through a blend of theoretical analysis, case studies, and practical applications, participants will gain a deep understanding of the challenges faced by impoverished individuals and communities, here in South Florida, nationally and globally, exploring effective strategies for legal advocacy. Interaction is integral to this course’s design. Weekly, students will be asked to actively engage in class discussion.

By its conclusion, students will have:

1. Explored the historical evolution and diverse interpretations of poverty in the United States.
2. Discussed the barriers to legal representation and considered strategies for enhancing access to justice.
3. Analyzed landmark cases addressing poverty-related legal issues.

4. Engaged with real-word case studies and best practices in poverty law and advocacy.
5. Investigated substantive areas within poverty law such as public benefits, healthcare, and housing.
6. Evaluated contemporary perspectives on mitigating poverty, locally, nationally and internationally.

VI. ADVISING RESOURCES

Study the course options before your scheduled appointment for registration and plan a tentative schedule for the year. When deliberating about course selection, please take advantage of the following advising resources.

A. Faculty advising contacts

We are grateful to the many faculty who have volunteered to advise you on course selection. If you have specific questions about course selection, please put them in writing and send them to the professor corresponding to your last name

VII. DISTANCE EDUCATION AND ACTIVE LEARNING

Law schools now make increasing use of video conferencing, learning management systems like Canvas, and other forms of technology to deliver legal education in various modalities beyond the traditional classroom. Welcomed by students and faculty, this trend raises challenges for law schools, universities, and state bars. Nomenclature is one challenge because different terms may be used for the same kind of modality or, conversely, the same term, for example hybrid, may mean different things based on context. Another challenge is balancing the benefits of these new instructional modalities with the risk that not all students will benefit from alternative ways of encountering course content.

A. Are these modalities for you?

The University offers courses in four different modalities, listed in the schedule in black (in-person), red (asynchronous), blue (hybrid), and purple (Online LIVE). Review the definitions below. As demonstrated by the rising student demand for them, nontraditional modalities are popular, though they may require some extra planning from students accustomed to the behavioral scaffolding of conventional in-person instruction, i.e., meeting every week in the same place at a regular time, an instructor’s probing glare, being in a room with colleagues. Our faculty care deeply about teaching, so when using these new technologies we take pains to adjust the class structure to best promote your learning. Nevertheless, taking a class in one of these new modalities may demand more independence and self-organization on your part, because there is less external structure than with in-person instruction. Be honest with yourself about which modalities work best for you. Only you can decide which modality works best for you.

The law school is fortunate to have one of the country's leading authorities on effective learning in the legal classroom—Dean Schulze. To learn about his work promoting active learning, please consult his seminal article on the subject.

B. In-person

This is the traditional modality for legal education. Both the instructor and the student are physically located in the same room and engage in face-to-face learning, though the course may involve digital resources such as a TWEN site, periodic taped lectures rather than in-person meetings, out-of-class exercises, and other forms of digital content. Unless otherwise indicated, all courses on the schedule are offered in person.

C. Asynchronous

This is a fully on-line course with no scheduled class meetings. The course is built by a faculty member working with an instructional designer and delivered on Canvas, the University's official learning management system. These materials may include taped lectures, PowerPoint presentations, and team exercises, as well as the full range of conventional assignments, i.e., quizzes, papers, and final examinations, used in in-person classes.

D. Hybrid

As this term is used at FIU, a hybrid course combines two modalities: (i) in-person meeting and (ii) asynchronous study. These courses meet in-person for one-half of class sessions; the rest of the course is asynchronous, as defined above. Hybrid law school classes follow a variety of meeting structures:

- In general, a 3-credit or 4-credit course that ordinarily meets twice a week will meet only once a week when it is taught in a hybrid format.
- When so indicated on the schedule, some hybrid or Online Live 3-credit or 4-credit courses may follow an alternating class schedule better suited to course goals, e.g., giving students time to complete out-of-class assignments, such that one week the course meets twice in-person and the following week the course has no in-person meetings.
- A 2-credit course (including a seminar) that meets for 100 minutes each week will generally meet for seven times for 100 minutes when taught as a hybrid course.
- When taught as a hybrid course, LSV II (a 2-credit course) meets every week for 50 minutes.
- A 1-credit course that ordinarily meets for 50 minutes each week will generally meet seven times for 50 minutes, rather than meeting 14 times for 50 minutes; other configurations are possible too.
- In some hybrid courses, the first part of the course is delivered in person with asynchronous content making up the later part of the course.

E. Online LIVE

Courses taught using Online LIVE combine two modalities: (i) remote synchronous and (ii) asynchronous study. These classes are taught entirely on-line, typically on Canvas. As part of the remote synchronous part which comprises 50% of the course content, these classes meet remotely in regularly scheduled class sessions attended by both the instructor and students. The rest of course content is delivered asynchronously, as defined above. As with hybrid courses, the first part of the course is delivered in person with asynchronous content making up the later part of the course.

Please note

Final examinations may be in-person regardless of course modality, therefore requiring your physical presence. Please check with your instructor to confirm how any final examination is administered.

F. Cap on distance education (30 credits)

As a law school accredited by the American Bar Association (ABA), the College of Law must comply with national standards for educational technologies that deliver course content beyond the traditional classroom. The ABA groups these modalities under the umbrella term of distance education. At present, we classify all asynchronous, hybrid, and Online LIVE as forms of distance education. A course taught in-person that includes only occasional taped lectures, out-of-class assignments that substitute for class meeting, and other forms of digital content does not count as distance education.

We cap the maximum number of distance education credits that a student can take to 30 credits. The Registrar's office tracks how much distance education students have taken so as not to exceed our limits or those of the ABA. In exceptional circumstances, the Associate Dean for Academic Affairs may waive the 30-credit cap based on the following factors: demonstrated professional benefit to the student, the degree to which the student has already taken bar-relevant courses, grade point average, and any previous waiver of administrative or distributional requirements, including those related to distance education.

G. BEWARE: restrictions on those interested in practice outside of Florida

Some state bars impose restrictions on granting credit for distance education courses, be it asynchronous, remote synchronous, or a hybrid form. For example, New York requires that students take professional responsibility in-person rather than through distance education. We cannot monitor the practice requirements for other states or countries, so you must assume responsibility for that. If you are interested in taking the bar of a state other than Florida, please educate yourself about the corresponding local Bar rules so that you take qualifying courses. When researching these questions, please make sure to drill down and to understand exactly what a particular modality involves.*

H. Restrictions of special interest to LL.M. students

Our LL.M. graduates should take note of the restriction above regarding state bar limitations on distance education courses. For example, the NY Bar accepts a maximum of 4 credits earned during the summer. Other countries also may impose similar restrictions that would apply to a U.S. graduate seeking admission to practice law, LL.M. students with questions or concerns about bar eligibility requirements may write to Professor Erin Loeb at eloeb@fiu.edu.

VIII. PART-TIME PROGRAM – SUMMER CLASSES

Students in the part-time program should be aware that they will have to take courses during at least one summer semester if they want to graduate in the spring of their fourth year. In general, the part-time program lasts 4 academic years. If a student takes courses only during the fall and spring terms, they have 8 semesters to meet their graduation requirements. However, part-time students are capped at taking 11 credits a semester, which means that attending only during the fall and spring will leave them with a maximum of 88 credits, i.e., 2 credits short of the 90-credit requirement to graduate. Therefore, students who want to graduate in the spring of their fourth year must take some summer classes.

IX. OF SPECIAL INTEREST TO OUR LL.M. STUDENTS

A vital part of the College of Law community, our LL.M. students take specialized courses as well as foundation courses and the same upper-level electives taken by J.D. students. With certain exceptions stemming from regulatory restrictions, they are welcome to participate in the full range of certificate offerings, co-curricular activities, and extra-curricular professional groups which can form an important part of a rewarding legal education. The general policies in this memorandum apply to both J.D. and LL.M students. As well, LL.M students should be aware of the following issues that are unique to their situation as foreign law graduates who may be planning to practice law in the United States.

A. Meeting credit requirements

LLM students must take 24 credits over a minimum of two semesters.

B. Automatic registration

LL.M. students will be automatically registered in the LL.M. mandatory courses.

C. Mandatory advising

All LL.M. students must contact Dean Manuel Gomez at magomez@fiu.edu for an advising appointment and submit their proposed class schedule via e-mail, in order to be allowed to register.

D. Applying for admission to the bar—Florida and other states

LL.M. students planning to take the bar exam in a U.S. jurisdiction benefit from the specialized Law and Procedure course offered every semester. LL.M. students should consult with Professor Erin Loeb at eloeb@fiu.edu regarding advising and bar eligibility in U.S. jurisdictions. Because tested subjects vary by jurisdiction, if you are interested in seeking eligibility in another state, you should check with the relevant Board of Bar Examiners regarding bar tested courses and other requirements. Some of this information was provided to LL.M. students during orientation.

E. Restrictions on distance education

In the United States, some state bars impose restrictions on granting credit for distance education courses, be it asynchronous, remote synchronous, or a hybrid form. For example, New York requires that students take professional responsibility in-person rather than through distance education and also imposes a maximum number of credits obtained through such modality, which is of special relevance to our LL.M. graduates. Other countries also may impose similar restrictions that would apply to a U.S. graduate seeking admission to practice law. When researching these questions, please make sure to drill down and to understand exactly what a particular modality involves.

X. PREPARING FOR THE BAR EXAMINATION

The law school is proud to have one of the country's leading programs in academic excellence and bar preparation. To learn about Dean Ruiz's pioneering work in this area, please read his article about our program. Central to its success are the following requirements and recommendations about course selection, including the bar-tested courses that we strongly urge you to take.

A. Law & Procedure: U.S. and Florida

This four-credit course is available only to third-year and fourth-year graduating students, who are strongly encouraged to take it during their final semester. This is a bar-focused course that emphasizes the particularities of Florida law and the multi-state exam. We offer the course three times a year.

B. Law & Procedure: U.S. and Florida

- This course is taught in the evening only in the fall.
- The spring 2026 section of Law and Procedure is restricted to students graduating in that semester.

Automatic registration into Law & Procedure

Beginning in the 2025-2026 year, graduating students will be automatically enrolled in this class. To opt out of the class, they must get the approval of Dean Ruiz.

C. Multi-State and Florida Bar Examinations

In addition to subjects covered in the foundation curriculum, the subject matter of the following courses is regularly tested on the Multi-State and/or the Florida Bar Examinations.

Box 5: Bar-tested subjects

Topics tested on the Florida Bar and/or the Multistate
Business Organizations	Florida Law & Procedure
Criminal Procedure: Investigation	Products Liability
Evidence	Professional Responsibility
Family Law	Remedies
First Amendment	Sales
	Secured Transactions
	Wills and Trusts

Not all bar-tested courses are created equal. Our bar preparation program continually analyzes the bar exam to identify which subjects are tested most frequently. In particular, we pay close attention to how our students perform on particular subjects tested on the bar examination, focusing in Florida. Based on the testing frequency, difficulty of the subject matter, patterns of student performance, and overlap of the subject between other subjects, we distinguish between bar-tested courses that are “highly recommended” or “recommended.”

Based on our research of student performance, the former are more important than the latter, so, all else being equal, it is better for students to take a highly-recommended than a recommended course. Of course, taking a course reduces a student’s “cognitive load” for that course during bar review, because the student has already encountered the material. Nevertheless, we believe that highly recommended courses can be particularly challenging, which is borne out in our students’ raw scores on the bar exam.

D. Summer bar-tested and recommended courses

Box 5A identifies bar-tested and other recommended courses offered this summer. Bar examiners periodically change the scope of what is tested. Depending on what Florida does with the coming changes to the bar exam, these recommendations may change.

Box 5A: Summer 2026 Bar-tested offerings

Highly-recommended
Business Organizations
Criminal Procedure: Investigation
Florida Constitutional Law
Wills and Trusts
Professional Responsibility
Florida Civil Practice
Administrative Law (not tested on Florida Bar but recommended)

E. Other jurisdictions

Because tested subjects vary by jurisdiction, if you are interested in seeking eligibility in another state, you should check with the relevant Board of Bar Examiners regarding bar tested courses and other requirements. LL.M. students should consult with Prof. Erin Loeb regarding advising and bar eligibility in U.S. jurisdictions.

XI. CERTIFICATES

The College of Law has three excellent certificate programs in Intellectual Property, Environmental & Natural Resources, and National Security & Military Law. Students enrolled in these certificates are responsible for meeting additional course and grade requirements to earn the certificate. The Registrar's office now allows students to apply for these certificates as soon as they finish their foundation requirements. Please consult the applicable requirements for these programs <https://law.fiu.edu/academics/jd/certificate-programs/>

A. Certificate in Intellectual Property

Professor Hannibal Travis supervises the certificate. To explain how it works and to introduce you to IP, Professor Travis recorded the video below (13 minutes):

XII. CLINICS AND EXTERNSHIPS

Students who want to enroll in one of the legal clinics or externships must complete and upload an application (available on Canvas, Clinical Registration Summer 2026 Shell or Externship Registration Summer 2026 Shell, beginning March 27). Students will be enrolled in a legal clinic or an externship course by the Registrar’s Office once their application is approved.

The Clinical, Externship, and Pro Bono Programs will hold an informational session hosted on March 24, 11am – 6:00pm. in the legal clinic. There will be snacks! You are strongly encouraged to attend this session and to also review all program information that will be posted to Canvas by March 27. If you have questions after the informational session and reviewing the materials posted to Canvas, please email: Ms. Zoraya Ledesma, @ledesmaz@fiu.edu.

APPENDIX D
HOW OFTEN ARE COURSES OFFERED?

In addition to the foundation curriculum, we offer upper-level courses following the guidelines below. These guidelines are designed so that you can meet your requirements, choose between electives, and pursue your specialized interests. These guidelines are not a contract (factors beyond our control can limit our ability to offer a course), but it is reasonable for you to rely on the information below when planning your legal studies and picking courses.

Please be advised that these guidelines assume that, in the J.D. program, a full-time student will attend six semesters (not including summer) and that a part-time student will attend eight semesters. If you are an LL.M. student, the regular full-time length is two semesters. Shortening your program of legal education at the College of Law—for example by taking courses during the summer or consistently taking extra credits—may limit your ability to take some of these courses; this is also true for transfer students.
