

Florida Center for Capital Representation at FIU Law Annual Giving Campaign

Florida Center for Capital Representation (FCCR) at FIU Law was created to bridge a lawyering gap in Florida's death penalty cases. Current lawyering falls far short of the "high quality" that is called for by the American Bar Association's Guidelines for the Appointment and Performance of Defense Counsel. As a result, the FCCR works with lawyers to ensure the state and/or a jury is fully informed about all of the mitigating factors, which aids in their ability to make a rational decision as to the proper penalty.

We teach and train law students the basics of death penalty law and we have clinical students assist in actual cases. In addition, the FCCR educates and consults with lawyers handling death penalty cases while providing ongoing litigation support. Your generosity will help the FCCR expand our work to teaching lawyers about the importance of hiring and using mitigation specialists in every death penalty case and investigating and presenting mitigating evidence.
